In Joy & Sorrow with Father Bill +

Six months after Pope Francis' election as the 266th Successor of Saint Peter and the Universal Pastor of the Roman Catholic Church, an interview conducted by a fellow Jesuit, Fr Antonio Spadaro, was published in the Jesuit magazine, America. (September 2013) Admitting that he is a sinner, Pope Francis called attention to his episcopal motto, which is Miserando atque Eligendo [By Having Mercy and Choosing Him]. Recalling his devotion to the painting by the Italian Carravaggio, titled The Call of Matthew, Pope Francis spoke humbly, "I am a sinner whom the Lord looked upon...That finger of Jesus, pointing to Matthew. That's me. I feel like him. Like Matthew. It is the gesture of Matthew that strikes me: he holds on to his money as if to say, No, not me! No, this money is mine."

The encounter between Jesus and the tax collector, Matthew, concludes with Jesus' response to the Pharisees' harsh judgments of Matthew, and of Jesus, for accepting Matthew's invitation to supper, at which many other tax collectors and sinners were present. "Go and learn the meaning of the words, I desire mercy, not sacrifice. I did not come to call the righteous but sinners." (Matthew 9:13)

Jesus is God's Face of Mercy. Our word mercy is from the Hebrew ra-cham-min, which is translated as compassion. And the root word for ra-cha-min is re-chem, which is translated as womb. Jesus is God's compassion made visible. His compassion or mercy is likened to being embraced in the womb of God. There was great peace, security, and affirmation for you and me while we were being nourished in the womb of the Lord long before the day of our conception in our mother's womb.

Jesus always leads with mercy, which is his response to people who often feel miserable or left out or pushed to the side. Jesus embraces people with his unconditional love. Jesus never says, "I will love you only if..." You might fill in the blank. It is Jesus' love that can change hearts. And how hearts need to change may be more in the purview of the Lord than it is in my purview or yours. Some things are best left between the Lord and the individual. Again, who are we to judge?

Pope Francis is known for his compassion. He often calls people on the phone, after learning of their personal sufferings and difficulties. He often sends handwritten letters as well. I like this personal touch of the Holy Father. He truly wants to embrace people and share with them the mercy of the Lord.

Pope Francis recently sent a personal letter to Father James Martin, a fellow Jesuit. Father Jim is well-known throughout our nation and the world for his many books. I have recommended to you Fr. Jim's latest book, Learning How to Pray. On September 30, 2019, Fr Jim had a personal audience with Pope Francis in Rome during which they discussed for thirty minutes the priest's ministry of compassion, sensitivity and respect to the members of the LGBTQ+ community. Anticipating last Saturday's Outreach 2021 LGBTQ Webinar Conference (6.26), Pope Francis sent a letter to Father Jim. Father Jim checked with persons close to Pope Francis who reassured him that the Pope would be fine with making his letter public. Here is that letter, translated from the original Spanish:

"Dear brother,

Thank you for your mail and for the photos. Please thank your nephew for his kindness to me and for having chosen the name Francisco (for his Confirmation). And congratulate him on the socks. He made me laugh. Tell him that I pray for him and ask him to do so for me.

Regarding your P.S. (about Outreach 2021), I want to thank you for your pastoral zeal and your ability to be close to people, with that closeness that Jesus had and that reflects the closeness of God. Our Heavenly Father approaches with love every one of his children, each and everyone. His heart is open to each and everyone. He is Father. God's style has three aspects: closeness, compassion and tenderness. This is how He draws closer to each one of us.

Thinking about your pastoral work, I see that you are continuously looking to imitate this style of God. You are a priest for all men and women, just as God is Father of all men and women. I pray for you to continue in this way, being close, compassionate, and with great tenderness.

And I pray for your faithful, your parishioners (flock), and anyone who the Lord places in your care, so that you protect them, and make them grow in the love of Our Lord Jesus Christ.

Please don't forget to pray for me. May Jesus bless you and may the Holy Virgin protect you.

Fraternally,

Francisco"

Blessed are the merciful for they shall be shown mercy. (Matthew 5:9)

Blessings on your Fourth of July celebrations on the 245th anniversary of our nation's independence. Enjoy with family and friends with post-pandemic gusto!!!

Fr. Bill +
