BAPTISM ANNOUNCEMENT

On Saturday, November 29 at the 4:30 PM Mass, we will celebrate a baptism with a large family. The first few pews on the St. Mary and St. Joseph side will be reserved for them. Thank you for your understanding and warm welcome!

THANK YOU FOR YOUR MINISTRY!

Kate Minczewski, our Minister of Adult Discipleship, has accepted a new position with the Family Radio Network. She will complete her Master's degree in Nonprofit Leadership and Management in May, and this role will allow her to use the skills she has developed through her studies. While we are sad to see her leave St. Mary Parish, we are grateful for her ministry among us and happy for the new opportunity ahead of her.

Church DOORS

Beginning December 6 and 7, the front and side church doors will be locked 10 minutes after Mass begins. There will be signs on the doors directing people to enter through Door 1 (the office entrance to the church) and Door 3 (the back parking lot entrance). This comes in response to recent incidents that have caused disruption in the back of the church and concerns about security during Mass.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact Chris Higgins in the office or email him at: chiggins@stmaryparish.org.

PREPARE YOUR HEART FOR JESUS THIS ADVENT

My introduction to the Hallow App was in 2021, when I became a confirmed member of the Catholic Church. Being new to Catholicism and being that we were still experiencing isolation due to COVID, Hallow helped me feel connected to the Catholic faith. Since then, I have continued to activate Hallow on a pretty regular basis, starting my day with the Daily Readings, exploring the Rosary, and learning new (to me) prayers. I am grateful to have Hallow wherever I go, helping my relationship with God to strengthen, feeling a sense of community and connection, and deepening my faith.

ST MARY PARISH - APPLETON // 11.23.2025

WITH FR. BILL SWICHTENBERG

The Solemn Celebration of our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe marks the end of the Liturgical Year of Grace for 2025. Next weekend, we welcome the Holy Season of Advent, which opens the Church's New Year of Grace for 2026. Let me be the first to wish you a "Happy New Liturgical Year!"

In 1925, in the aftermath of the Great War, Pope Pius XI promulgated the Feast of Christ the King. In the face of the advance of secularism and atheism, and the increasing violence among nations of the world, the Holy Father felt called to reassure people of faith everywhere that the Lord was in charge and that his love would always reign and have the final say over every sin of selfishness and all death.

Pope Pius would not be surprised by the results of a study just released by Gallup News on November 13th. A polling of Americans indicates "a 17-point drop in the percentage of U.S. adults who say religion is an important part of their daily life — from 66% in 2015 to 49% today — which ranks among the largest Gallup has recorded in any country over any 10-year period since 2007."

Let me be the first to wish you a "Happy New Liturgical Year!"

“About half of Americans now say religion is not an important part of their daily life. They remain as divided on the question today as they were last year.”

“The steady decline in U.S. religiosity over the past decade has been evident for years. Fewer Americans identify with a religion, church attendance and membership are declining, and religion holds a less important role in people’s lives than it once did. But this analysis of World Poll data puts the decline in a wider context, showing just how large the shift has been in global terms. Since 2007, few countries have measured larger declines in religiosity.”

The point of the survey is clear. You and I might bring anecdotal corroboration to the decline in an interest in religion as we look to our own families.

I also want to introduce into the discussion the dynamic of spirituality versus religiosity. It may be that some people in Gallup’s survey pool are more spiritual than they are religious. It is being a member of an institutional Church that may be unappealing to some people, even though they experience a connection to the Lord in their daily lives. Be that as it may, I think that spirituality and religion need to be linked. Both are essential in the life of a friend of Jesus. I walk with the Lord, day by day, and I am strengthened on that walk when I join a faith community in which we share the journey together.

Also, the Holy Spirit is hard at work among young people who are expressing in record numbers an interest in Catholicism and presenting themselves for the Sacraments of Initiation, that is Baptism, Confirmation and Eucharist.

It is true that our Lord Jesus is King of the Universe, and even of the Cosmos, whether people believe that or not. Just as important is whether or not Jesus is the Lord of my life!

Let me conclude this reflection with some excerpts from a homily delivered by Pope Francis on the Solemn Feast of Christ the King on Sunday, November 20, 2022.

Only by entering into [Jesus’] embrace [from the cross] do we understand that God went to this extreme, even to the paradox of the cross, in order to embrace every one of us, no matter how far distant we may be from him. Jesus embraces our death, our pain, our poverty, our weakness. He embraced all of it. He became a slave so that each of us could become a [child of God.] By becoming a slave, Jesus purchased our kinship. He let himself be insulted and derided, so that whenever we are brought low, we will never feel alone. He let himself be stripped of his garments, so that no one would ever feel stripped of his or her rightful dignity. He ascended the cross, so that God would be present in every crucified man or woman throughout history. This is our king, the king of the universe, for he journeyed to the furthest confines of our human experience, entered into the black hole of hatred, the black hole of abandonment, in order to bring light to every life and to embrace all reality.

My brothers and sisters, this is the king whom today we acclaim! His is not a kingship easy to understand. And the question we ought to be asking is this: Is this king of the universe also the king of my life? Do I believe in him? How can I celebrate him as the Lord of all creation, unless he also becomes the Lord of my life?

So let us look once more upon the crucified Jesus. Let us look at him. He does not look at our life only for a brief moment, or give us the same kind of fleeting glance that we so often give him. No, he stays there, with open arms, to say to you in silence that nothing about you is foreign to him, that he wants to embrace you, to lift you up and to save you just as you are, with your past history, your failings and your sins. "But Lord, is this true, that you love me with all my failings?" Right now, let us think about our own personal poverty. "Lord, do you love me with this spiritual poverty and all these limitations?" And the Lord smiles and makes us understand that he loves us and gave his life for us.

Let us think of our own limitations, but also of the good things. He loves us as we are, as we are right now. He gives you a chance to reign in this life, if only you surrender to his meek love that proposes but never imposes, a love that always forgives you. So often we tire of forgiving. We make the sign of the cross and turn our backs on that person [who has betrayed us]. Jesus never tires of forgiving, never. He always sets you on your feet. Jesus always restores your royal dignity. Where does salvation come from? It comes from letting ourselves be loved by him, for only in this way are we freed from slavery to ourselves, from the fear of being alone, from thinking that we cannot succeed.

My brothers and sisters, let us often stand before the crucified Lord and allow ourselves to be loved, because His open arms also open heaven to us, as they did to the good thief. Let us hear, addressed to us, the only words that Jesus today speaks from the cross: "Today you will be with me in paradise" (Luke 23:43). That is what God wants to tell us whenever we let him gaze upon us. Then we realize that ours is not an "unknown God," up in the heavens, powerful and distant, but rather a God who is close. Closeness is God's "style," closeness with tenderness and mercy. Tenderness and compassion; his open arms console and caress us. That is our [Lord Jesus Christ,] King [of the Universe!]

Fr. Bill +
